ART PROBLEMS TO THEIR MAJESTIES THE KING AND QUEEN.

By Appointment

Marauding Chunchuses. These people are a race of banditti and like their brethren the pirates of the sea, are a constant terror to the country they infest. They make their living by robbery and are here depicted after looting a solitary hamlet. Their recklessness and daring in destroying bridges, roads and railways made them useful auxiliaries during the Russo-Japanese war although this was somewhat discounted by their unpleasant custom of robbing the dead.
